TURNEY'S FATHER ROBBED SAME BANK THAT HIS SON LOOTED

KING OF GREECE IS "ALL SET" FOR AMERICA'S FINE ATHLETES.

Was Paying Teller Thirty Years Ago and in 1877 Stole $106,000 of Its Funds, Giving Back $6,000.

MYSTERIOUS "EDNA" IN SON'S CASE IS LOCATED.

She Is Miss Leonard, a Boarding-House Keeper, and Officials Are Convinced that She Did Not Share in Plunder.

According to a story printed this afternoon and credited to a former director of the National Bank of North America, the father of Joseph A. Turney, the defaulting note teller, stole $106,000 from that institution in 1877.

At the bank it was said that the story could not be confirmed from the records, as the concern was a State bank prior to 1891 and the oldest clerk in its employ had been connected with the establishment for only twenty years.

The elder Turney is said to have returned $6,000 of his defalcation. He was not prosecuted.

Joseph A. Turney stole $34,000, consequently the loss to the bank through the Turneys, father and son, would be $140,000.

It appears that the defalcation of Joseph A. Turney's father was kept a secret by the bank officials. The man who is in the Tomb for stealing from the funds of the institution may not have known that his father was a thief, but the coincidence is striking.

Father Was Paying Teller.

Back in 1877 the National Bank of North America was known as the Bank of North America. William Dowd was president and Turney's father was paying teller.

The source of information as to the defalcation of the elder Turney said today that Turney received notice one morning that the bank examiners were about to make an investigation of the books. He went to Mr. Dowd and confessed that he, with the assistance of another clerk, had stolen $106,000, which had been taken in speculation.

For reasons best known to themselves the bank officers forgave Turney, who, with the confederate, managed to scrape up $6,000, which they returned. Whether or not the defaulter remained in the service of the bank is not known, but the son, who had then been in the employ of the institution about a year, was not disturbed.

President Alfred H. Curtis, of the National Bank of North America, said this afternoon that the alleged defalcation of the elder Turney was news to him. He had never heard that Joseph Turney's father worked in the bank, but his connection there does not extend back to 1877. According to Mr. Curtis Turney was the oldest employee in point of service, having been with it thirty-three years. None of the clerks there now ever heard of Turney's father.

"Edna" Is Found.

An Evening World reporter to-day located the mysterious "Edna" in the case of Joseph Turney, the defaulting note teller of the National Bank of North America. She is Miss Edna M. Leonard, and she conducts a modest and respectable boarding-house at No. 28 West Forty-sixth street, next door to the Lyric Apartments.

Miss Leonard has been out of the house since she heard of the arrest

MILLER, IN GREAT FORM, RIDES THREE WINNERS

BY FRANK W. THORP.

BENNINGS RESULTS.

BENNINGS RACE TRACK, WASHINGTON, April 2.—A change for the better in the weather gave racegoers a real chance to enjoy life to-day. While there was a cold breeze there was sufficient sun to stand it off and make things comfortable. The track had dried out on the top, but the rail going was still and very lumpy. This made the riders take to the middle of the course on the run home.

While there was nothing particularly classy about the card, it was inviting, being evenly balanced, and this always makes open speculation.

The attendance numbered easily 2,000, and the clubhouse veranda was well packed as usual.

Tickle Only Galloped.—Tackle, the 2 to 5 favorite, and Baby Willie, an outsider, were the only ones to get away from the post in the opening race. The rest of the field was badly strung out while Gertrude 3 was left. Tackle never had a dog more than gallop, winning by seven lengths from Bettie Bouncer, which closed at the cap and beat Baby Willie a neck for the place.

Another Belmont Victory.—August Belmont's Curriculum spread-eagled the two-year-olds in the second, winning by six lengths from Brittanby, a well-played 16-to-1 shot, which beat Strong Arm three lengths for the place. Powder Horn ran in second place to the stretch, when he blew up. Encore was left at the post.

Third Favorite Goes Through.—Campagner, the 5-to-5 favorite, made all the running in the third, and won ridden out by George Jennings from Brittanby, a well-played 16-to-1 shot, which beat Strong Arm three lengths for the place. Powder Horn ran in second place to the stretch, when he blew up. Encore was left at the post.

The Crown Won as He Pleased.—The Crown, played from even money to 3 to 1, won the fourth race all the way. Miller never let him down, winning as he pleased. Radical, a 1 to 2 shot, won in second place to the stretch, where Hocus Pocus took up the running, but soon weakened, and at the very end, Vagabond, a 2 to 1 shot, closing very fast took the place.

Pater Beat Lord of the Vale.—August Belmont furnished an odds-on favorite in the handicap, Lord of the Vale. Nobody wanted Lord of the Vale. However, and at the price soared from $10 to 7 to 5. Pater was the heaviest played horse in the race. Miller broke him away in front, and followed by Lord of the Vale, shook off the rest of the field. Pater was never let down, winning by two lengths from Lord of the Vale. Jones did not punish the latter. Race King was a poor third.

Long Shot Made the Pace.—John F. Ahern, a 9 to 1 chance, made the running in the sixth, followed by Delcader and Delcader. All three slipped in the run home. Redmore, closing strong, beat Delcader two lengths, with Widow's Mite third.

Prof. Shaler Has Pneumonia.—CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 2.—Prof. Nathaniel S. Shaler, the eminent geologist and dean of the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard University, is ill with pneumonia, following an operation for appendicitis performed last week. He is sixty-five years old.

RUHLIN TO BOX IN BIG GARDEN

The success of the three-round boxing clubs has inspired some enterprising promoters to offer New York better exhibitions than they have been paying to see, and to that end Madison Square Garden has been engaged for a late lay-out in April for a big three-round carnival. Efforts are under way to present Marvin Hart and Gus Ruhl in the star bout on the opening night. Terms that they can hardly overlook for a three-round exhibition have been offered these boxes, and Ruhl has already expressed his willingness to accept.
